Introduction

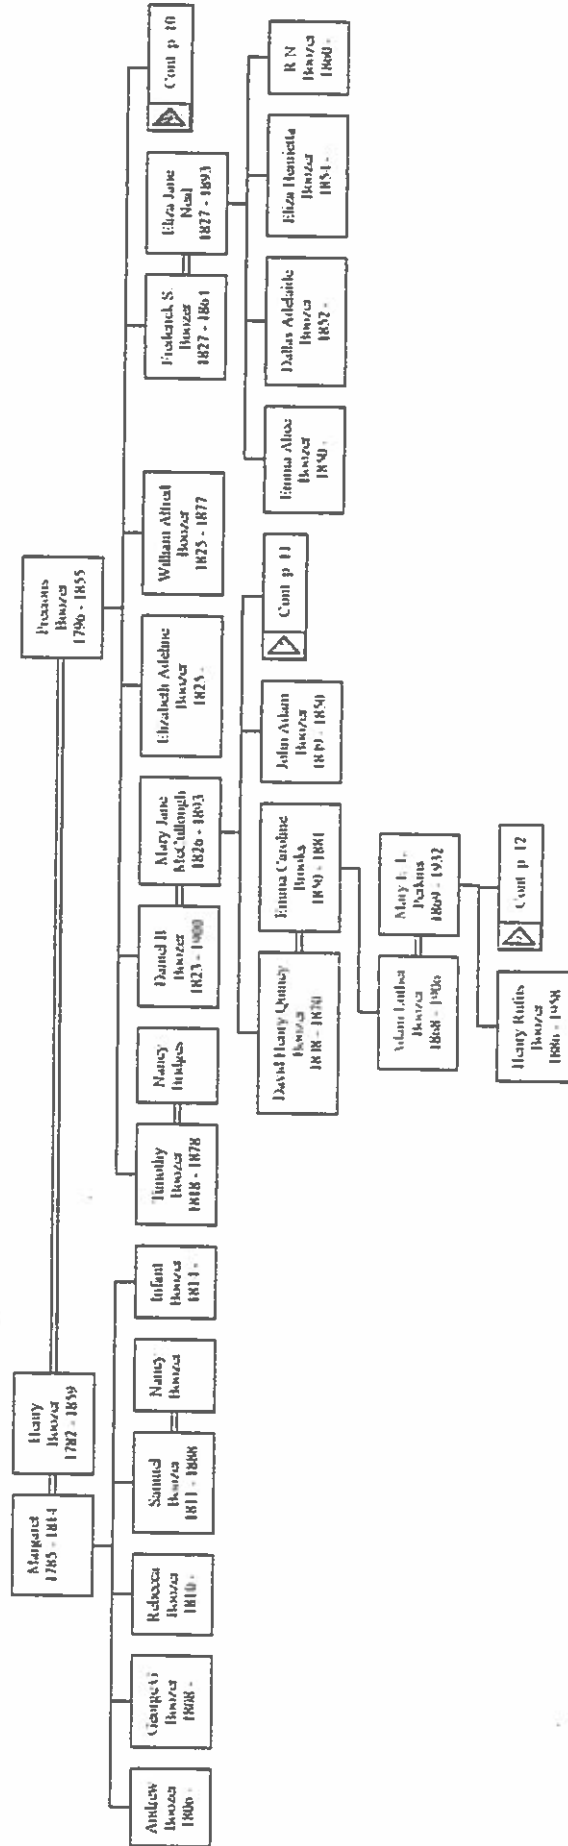

After the publication of the Boozer family history by Miss Mary E. Boozer of White Rock, S.C. entitled, The Boozer Family of South Carolina over twenty years ago, I began researching my Boozer family connections in Newberry County, S.C. Since Miss Boozer stopped her book with my mother's generation, I have made very effort to stay close to my Boozer relatives of South Carolina. Travelling to the Newberry Courthouse along with visiting my cousins, I have learned much about our very large family and have extended them down to the present generation.

Since our surname originated in Switzerland as "Buser", it has been native to South Carolina since the 18th century with all of them serving in the Revolutionary War on both sides and didn't become "Boozer" until the 19th century. Migrating up from Orangeburgh to Saxe Gotha with their Swiss cousins, they settled along the Congaree River near present-day Lexington. Though many stayed in this area, Henry Boozer, Sr. moved his family to lower Newberry County near Smyrna Presbyterian Church and had a very large family with a great many descendants. Several generations were cut short by the early demise of the father due to illness, such as the case of Adam Luther Boozer of Newberry, S.C. who died of scarlet fever at only age thirty-eight. His son J. Luther Boozer of Camden passed suddenly at only age 54 of heart disease. Though I was only seven when my grandfather passed, I have very good memories of growing up in his house and enjoying the company of many of his relatives who came for visits or we would travel to visit during my childhood. After many trips to Newberry over the years, I have learned a great deal about our large family and trust that you share my interest as our family continues to grow.
