My Dear Mr. Peebles,

It was a real pleasure to hear from anybody with Miles blood in hisveins. The whole family meant so much to me.

You mention that Francis T. Miles and Jeanie Wardlaw Miles had but one child. They had four. I cannot give you their dates. The oldest was ~~Francis Turmond~~ who died of diptheria at about five years of age. Next came my husband, Louis (not Lewis) Wardlaw who was born in 1873 and died in 1944. The third child was Sarah Warley who died of a tubercular hip at about age thirteen. The fourth was Alice Patterson who lived to about the age of six.

Additional facts about Dr. Miles are; He was probably born on a plantation near Charleston ( I think in Orange County). He taught at one time in the Medical College of Charleston. He moved to Baltimore after the Civil War. For the first year he had a position teaching in an unknown medical school at a salary of $600 which equaled exactly the cost of renting their house. You can imagine the struggle. After one year he transfered to the University of Maryland to teach Anatomy there. In later years he became a neurologist.

My husband, Louis Wardlaw, was born in Baltimore on March 23, 1873. He went to school in Baltimore, and was graduated from Johns Hopkins in 1894, and from the Univ. of Md. medical school three years later. He realized that medicine was not for him, and he took a PhD in English at Johns Hopkins. After one year teaching German at the Gilman school, he came to Princeton and taught in the University for twelve years prior to the First World War. The rest you know. We were married in 1908 and had four children.

- d. Carolyn Gale Miles born in 1946.

III. Samuel Stockton Miles born November 12, 1913. He graduated from Princeton University and the Johns Hopkins medical school. He married Mary Wick in 1941. He served as a Navy doctor attached to the Marines and was killed on Tulagi August 7, 1942. He was awarded the Silver Star posthumously.

IV. Jeanie Wardlaw Miles born April 18, 1918 and married in 1942 to William Henry Walker II an Architect in Princeton, New Jersey. They have four children:

- a. Adelaide Miller Walker born 1943 married Richard Kendall Walton 1964.
- b. Katharine Miles Walker born 1944
- c. William Henry Walker III born 1947
- d. Samuel Miles Walker born 1950

Perhaps by now you know more than you want to know about the Miles family, but you are certainly at liberty to forget it.

With every good wish for the new year.

Sincerely yours,

Katharine Stockton Miles
