Dear Sir:

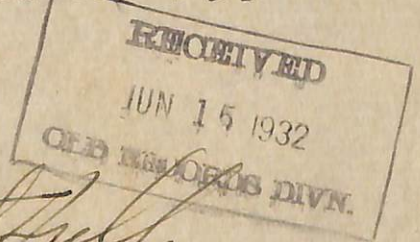

I would like to know Revolutionary War record of James Reynolds of South Carolina Militia he was a half brother of Benjamin Reynolds who served in Revolutionary War on Johns Island S.C. Brig. Reynolds was from Radnacer Island near Charleston S.C. he James Reynolds is my ancestor and I want to join Daughters of American Revolution. is the reason for my asking about his war record.

Thanking you for any information you can find

Dear Miss Lawton:

I have run through what papers I have on low country families and regret to say that I do not find ^{anything} on the James Reynolds you wish. There was an Elisha Reynolds in N.C. and a William Reynolds in N.C. to render service a Mr. Charles Elbert Riby of Pinckneyville S.C. having joined the S.A.R. on the latter line. A letter to him might help you to get what you wish. The fact that Richard Reynolds commanded British Troops would be splendid data for Colonial Dames - for the cousin - and yourself. He died about in 1750's - didn't he?

Am too sorry I haven't the data you need - but if any one has joined on that line - I don't know of it - Best wishes. Cordially

My dear Miss Lawton, am sorry I am unable to give you any more information than my brother Rogers has already written you about the Reynolds family; there are Reynolds buried in a private burial ground on this island, and perhaps later I can get you some data from the tombstones, at present one is afraid to go into the burial ground which is in an unkept condition.

Mr. C. Bissel Jenkins, The Boulevard, Charleston, S.C. is a descendant of the Reynolds, and I know he has recently been looking up the Reynolds genealogy, so perhaps he can give you the desired information, and I feel sure he will be glad to do so. Also you may find out whether your ancestor fought in the Rev. War by writing to the Pension Office in Washington. There is I think some one who looks up such matters, you can ask some member of the D.A.R. to whom you must apply. I am eligible to membership in the D.A.R. through my great-grandfather, Rev. Oliver Hart, but there is no Chapter in this Island, have been invited to join a Chapter in York, D.C. and also in Greenwood, D.C., but both towns are too far off, and I do not care to be a Daughter at Large. I hope you will be able to get the desired information.

Very sincerely,

Dear Miss Lawton: -

Here is a Reynolds line from your section, which I think comes from your own Reynolds line. Can you tell me, please, just which one of the Reynolds girls married a Rogers? and which Rogers he was? The Beaufort Co Clerk of Court is Mr. Rogers, or Rodgers, and this is, perhaps, some of his family - If you don't mind asking him, he could, probably, tell you.

I have seen your Lawton, Robert line in one of the copies of Firkus "First Families of America" and will copy it & send you if you haven't it already. I am out on road, or would send it now.

I have given the dates "about" but we would have to have town stones or Bible records to have them exact. The Beaufort Co. records only go back to the 1860's - having had the earlier ones burned when Sherman went through.
Did your cousin ever get her D.A.R. papers through?
Why don't you write us a book on Beaufort Co. History?
It is such a fertile field, and so many old cemeteries, with interesting inscriptions, old homes etc.

Thank you for any help. Cordially
Lillian M. Orr.

Richard Reynolds.

Richard Reynolds, an English benefactor, born in Bristol 1735, was a member of the Society of Friends. He married Hannah Darby in 1757, and became a partner in the iron and coal works at Ketley. In 1763 he moved to Coal-brook Dale, where he superintended a large manufactory of iron. He is said to have been the first who employed iron instead of wood in the construction of rail roads. His business afforded a large income a great part of which he expended in deeds of charity. He removed to Bristol 1804. Died in 1816.

Name of Hunting Island Dates Back for 175 Years

1950

By W. D. W.

COLUMBIA, Aug. 30: Hunting Island, now a state park near Beaufort, apparently has been so named for 175 years or more.

On August 19, The News and Courier published a story speculating on the origin of the island's name. Since then, two readers have supplied additional data showing that the tract has been called Hunting island for many, many years.

Miss Jeannie T. Cason, of 9 Ladson street in Charleston, cited an old French map of 1777 (referred to in a 1940 News and Courier story). On that map, the island in question was identified as "Isle de Chasseurs," (island of hunters).

More detailed information came from Robert H. Reynolds, of 10 Asheley avenue, Charleston, who possesses family data on the island. Reference was made to Mr. Reynolds' grand uncle, Benjamin Reynolds, in the News and Courier story of August 19. In that story, Benjamin Reynolds was quoted as having referred to "all the sea islands and hunting islands, from Sullivan's to Savannah river."

According to Mr. Robert Reynolds, early maps of South Carolina show Hunting island to have been named King Philip island, later changed to Reynolds' island. Mr. Reynolds said:

"The will of William Reynolds, dated January 14, 1784 and filed for probate December 13, 1788, makes the following bequest:

"I give to my son, Benjamin Reynolds, the tract of land on St. Helene island on which he now lives and the island known as Reynolds' Hunting island during his natural life and at his death to be equally divided between his two sons, William and Thomas Reynolds."

Mr. Robert Reynolds added that there were none of his family name in St. Helene's parish after 1860, and said he believed the name was changed about then to the present designation, "Hunting island."

He supported the contention of Dr. Havilah Babcock, sportsman and professor of English at the University of South Carolina, that the island was so named because game was plentiful on the island.

Surgeons Scare in Confederate Army

Service in the artillery of the Confederacy was no cinch, according to William J. Verider, of Beaufort. When an acquaintance came to Richmond and proposed to join his company, Verdier told him to become a surgeon instead. All this the young soldier told his parents in one of a series of letters he wrote from the lines in Virginia. These letters have been preserved and the twenty-five appears below. The News and Courier has already printed twenty of them.

Artillery Camp,
Near Richmond, Va.,
June 17, 1862.

My Dear Father:

I have only this moment received your letter of the 10th, and as I've a little spare time hasten to answer it.

We were not in the battle on Saturday, but just after closing your letter we left camp for the line and entered it Sunday. We were on the lines nine days, skirminshing every day, some times it seemed as if the engagement would become general but now I think there will be no fight here. I think we are awaiting Jackson's movements in the Valley. We were only relieved from duty on the lines a few days ago. If I had been able I would have telegraphed to you, thinking you would be uneasy, but I had no opportunity being ordered immediately to the field.

I went into Richmond yesterday and there much to my surprise met George. He told me he had come on to join some company out here and spoke of joining our company, but I persuaded him out of that as I knew he would not be able to stand it, and would not be willing to do what we have to do, and I would feel mortified to see him punished. Since I've been out here I always do my duty and behave myself, so I get on pretty well. I did not have much time to see him as he arrived there only that morning and I met him accidentally at the hotel. I asked him to come out to the camp to see me but he didn't come. I advised him to stand an examination for attendant surgeon as they are in want of them now but he did not think he could pass. I told him to see Nash and perhaps he might get him something to do.

Our company is very much reduced from fighting, sickness and discharges, so that duty falls very heavy on the well ones.

I wrote you from the lines and directed to Newman.

I must now chose as it is almost dark. Give a great deal of love to my dear mother and all. As soon as you can get a negro for me send him out as I need him very much and they cannot be got here.

Ever your truly affectionate son William

P. S. John Reynolds is in Richmond, he has a commission as a sistant surgeon in the army.

This is taken from a letter written by Wm Thomas Lewis to his mother. We have been pleasantly excited by the cunning escape of the negroes from Charleston with the Steamer Planter. The Pilot Robert is the hero of the hour he is really a most remarkable specimen of the dusky sons of Africa (alias nigger) never using a word of less than three syllables when an opportunity offers.

The following is taken from a letter written by Gen. Isaac Stephens to his wife dated May 18-1862. Above is a crew of the Steamer Planter a dispatch boat of Gen Ripley in Charleston Harbor which was run off by the Pilot Robert and the block crew last week. It is a very remarkable affair and makes quite a hero of Robert. He was tied up at the Wharf close to Ripley's Office. Let he slipped into the Harbor Unobserved and

Robert is taken with the name Robert Smalls, and he was with Lewis

Protection for Women

To The News and Courier:

Recently I was asked, "Aren't you from the North"? Well, that question is enough to make my American ancestors turn over in their graves. Richard was the first Capers in our family to come over here. And, although he had made many trips, it wasn't until 1684 that he brought his family over to live.

In 1691 he bought a piece of property in Charleston on Church and Tradd streets, from Thomas Rose. The house he built stands there today. He died in 1694. In 1695, William, his only child by a former marriage, relinquished his claim in favor of his step-mother Mary and her five children. The youngest, Thomas, was my ancestor, and the first Capers born in America.

His brother Richard became his guardian. In those days merchants delivered their own merchandise; attached the word "gentleman" to their name and had their coat of arms. Their sons were educated in a monastery and their daughters in a convent. And so William came home from a monastery in Wales at the death of his father. And being the eldest son became the head of the family.

His father, Richard, was a brick merchant and delivered his brick himself in his own boat. And our coat-of-arms is authentic. The crest shows that the bearer was a crusader and the second son of a nobleman. This Richard Capers of 1684 and his wife, Mary, have many descendants living who are daily readers of your News and Courier.

My father, Gabriel, called young Gabe by his friends, and his father, Uncle Gabriel, did not believe in secession. Grandfather's will was probated in 1859. He divides up his land and slaves among his wife, Mary Y., daughter of Benjamin Reynolds, of Wadmalaw Island (so the will stipulates) and their children. He was a representative in our state assembly many years, from Beaufort county. When the war came in 1861, father, being a former cadet of The Citadel, took up arms in defense of his native state, like Robert E. Lee. When he came home from the war he found it occupied by Union soldiers and mother and her nurse refugeed elsewhere. He managed to get possession of his home by buying it from the federal government. But later, it was burned to the ground by a drunken Union soldier. Both my parents were ill at the time and the news finally killed my father. And so I'm wondering where those Red Shirt and KKK were such horrible experiences.

If I have ever met or even seen a KKK I don't know it. But I do know that women and children and the weak and the helpless need protection. But today it seems to be necessary for women to get up their own legal protective associations. One was in Texas when I was teaching school. Another was in Florida when I was taking care of three boys whose parents were attending an Episcopal convention in New Orleans. Their father was an Episcopal minister. There may be many other such legal protective associations of women. We need them. And if I had the money I would get up practical Christian association homes for the aged, another thing that is badly needed.

Washington visit to Ga & S.C. 1783

According to Mr Schaffer of Watterboro we knowing of Washington's visit he first went to Charleston via Rantowels and stopped at his various homes just off the highway at the home of William Washington (Smithson's son) he then went into Charleston where they royally entertained him with pomp & ceremony. He then went to Paroligo town which is the nearest point to Beaufort S.C. It is said he was entertained there and such men as McPherson, Laurens, Pumphrey & Thos Heyward a signer of the Declaration of Independence were here. Washington went to Darroch then to Af gasta then on to Columbus S.C. by way of Jacksonboro S.C.

Paroligo was also the town is about the size of Beaufort. All beautiful land but at that time it was hanson's home, and long after the Revolutionary War of 1776 to 1783 could be seen by the roadside here a large oak tree where a scout hid during the Revolution - a spy on the British and the trunk of that tree was imbedded with shots from the enemy's powder hoop gun. It was here that also our man, Capt. William Gardner who was Capt. of our famous Beaufort Militia of 1776 captured so many British soldiers with just a handful of his men ^{at Sallitahale} and had a decisive battle. He caught them unawares, and struck to the right at the very corner of Potahgo, which was to remain be the scene of another battle during the Confederate War of 1861 to 1862 it was here that our world famous General Robert E. Lee had as his headquarters and where a most terrible battle raged between the Rebels & the Yankees or rather the Gray & the Blue and just a little further up the road to Beaufort at Gardens

Corner another awful fight took place where it was said at least a wagon load of legs + arms were thrown up the river. There is here our noble B.V.A.'s fought to a finish under Col. Stephen Elliott + later under Capt. Hal M. Stuart as Col. Elliott injured later in Ft. Sumter and was made a Gen. there.
Gardner's Corner was so named so because Capt. Gardner of Providence was owned this plantation and it was said that his home stood at this point near road.

Atter Sam has a wall paper account of the Potomac fight by B.V.A. also at Honey Hill.

Again the Union soldiers put more shots of the Rebels to what old oak by the side of road at Potomac. ③

MRS. W. J. WILLINGHAM
TAVARES, FLORIDA

My very dear Addie:-

The letter you wrote Mary is before me, she has asked me to answer it as she thinks I can answer your questions better than she can. I was in bed when she wrote you, but am up now and feeling much better. I cannot tell you where the older generation of Raymonds are buried except Uncle Ephraim who was buried in Lawtonville my Mother in Chattahoochee by the side of my Husband & Brother was buried by the Smyrna Church near Alandale. I wish I did know where under William Raymonds grave is. I have heard that there is a lovely painting of him in one of the public buildings in Atlanta. I wish I could see it. A good many of my kin have spent the night with me on their way from Tipton and Atlanta to Meridian. They were trying to get rid of the cold climate. How has it been in Beaufort? I have not suffered from the weather here so far.

MRS. W. J. WILLINGHAM

My son Eugene, wife and young daughter arrived Friday in his car to see her but left this morning for their home in Atlanta.
I am all right now, but Aunt's cold has left her feeling badly. I do wish my dear child, what you could come to see me. I have plenty of room. Can't you come?
Love from your own Cousin
Florence

P.S. I remember your Father, Mother, and Miss Lillian Reynolds, what become of her?
She was at Limestone College with her. Please excuse this dreadfully written letter.
I am so tired & sleepy!
May sends love and says she will try to write you soon.

Dear you tell me what my name Willingham's name is going to be?

Best Address:-

This is Saturday and I find plenty to do, but going to try to answer the letter of one who is so dear to me

I am so thankful that you are well enough to write to your old cousin. How old are you?

I know you are younger than I am, I was born Sep 15th 1847.

I still am able to go to Sunday school, stay to services and go back to night services. Monday I go to the "Florence Willingham Missionary Circle" we also attend prayer meeting Wednesday night. of course my butter dishes me, May goes with me, always I enjoyed your nice long letter very much

Now I must try to answer some of your questions I do not know who Joshua Jones and George Jessie were. Mother had a family Bible, which I now have she told me she had a half brother named Benjamin Chaplin. I think I have seen him when I was quite small.
I do not know the first name of Miss Hoy. I think the Richard Reynolds you wrote about must have been your Great Grand Father Can you tell me who Miss Lillie

Reynolds was she taught me at Amestone College P. S. in 1863.

I heard through Feticie Daniels that J. Wood was in bad health & had to walk on crutches, tell me about them when you next write

Give my love to your children & remember you are very much loved by your devoted cousin Florie

I am glad that you can see to write me a letter, and that the home that my dear Mother lived in when I was a child is still standing, I wonder if I was born in that house, I do not suppose there is any one living that could inform me.

Mary has been to Orlando all day attending the Baptist Florida Convention, she got some friends to stay with me till her return this afternoon she enjoyed the trip.
The weather is still warm, have had no fire so far, and very little rain.
I thank you for all the information you gave me in your letter also glad that Brocius sent you a book which tells a good deal about the family, you know more than I do. I wish very much I could go to see you again. & I will if I have a chance I am very well & wish you could come to see me. May God bless & comfort you is the prayer of Your loving cousin

Dear Frances - Wish I could drop in right now, & know how Aunt Adie feels, then have the most contentment that comes to a distant one when she finds herself in her family circle. I am thinking of my loved ones today.

I have just read a letter from Clara Belle - Ben's wife - in Way Cross.
Her children are doing beautifully at school and Tom wrote me recently that when he was in Way Cross he heard that Ben Dr.
Larima & her younger brother were the outstanding young folks of the town. Enclosed is a letter from Cousin Tillie Hall Lagerquist. I know her. A bright woman. Aunt Addie knows who her mother was.

If Aunt Addie knows where Martha Sarah Reynolds married Benj. & Charles and who Martha Sarah's mother & father were, & when they married & died, please give me this information, so I can use it too.

Cousin Tillie must have other dates on Reynolds & Charles that we could use. As I see will be able to complete the Reynolds tree if you can get these facts for her.

Is Tillie with you? I have been sick. Ok. now. Terrible Cold I see & expect here. Tell me all about dear Aunt Addie. Fondly yr. Cousin Jennie Q.

Backward Glances

News our grandfathers read in The News and Courier, August 2, 1901:

Those who are perpetually praising old times will be shocked to hear that there were mosquitos in Charleston a century and a half ago. This is proved by the will of Benjamin Baker, of record at the Probate Court in this city. On December 29, 1748 (long after mosquito season in these degenerate days), he bequeaths to his beloved wife, among other bedding, "one pavillion."

Mr. Gevert Dreyer, who owns the handsome store at the southwest corner of Church and Tradd streets, and the small two-story brick building adjoining, is of the opinion that the Sons and Daughters of the Revolution, Colonial Dames, Historical Society and other patriotic organizations are strangely overlooking a landmark which is well worth a brass tablet. It was in the small brick building next to Mr. Dreyer's house that the Provincial House of Assembly met. Mr. Charles Fraser described it as "an old brick house on the west side of Church street, two doors south of the corner of Tradd street," and said that it was once the residence of Miles Brewton.

The reason that some of the inscriptions are complete and some are not, is that the ones I copied, I put everything that was on the stone down. Mrs. Lee helped me, and the ones she took were not as complete as mine. She thought I only wanted names and dates, but I thought that the full inscription would be of interest to you. I. M. S.
